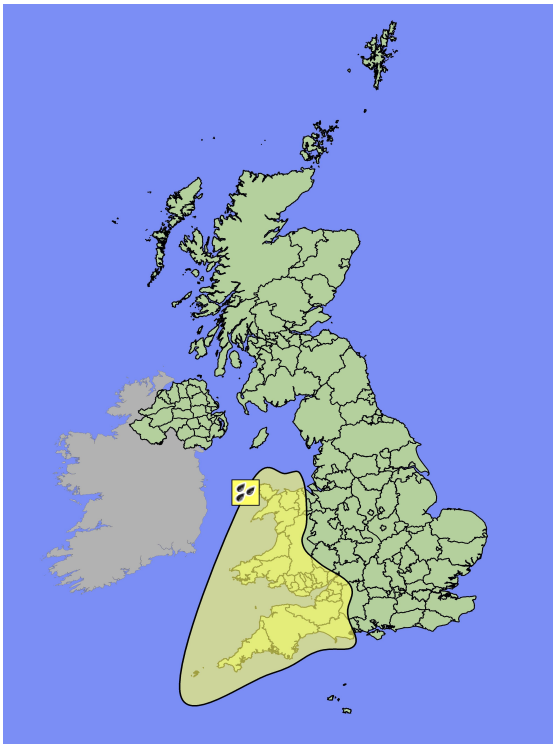
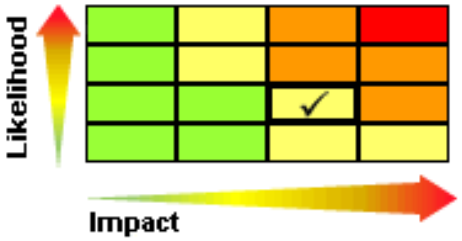
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
A very deep area of low pressure will pass close to northwestern UK on Tuesday, bringing a spell of wet and windy weather. The heaviest and most persistent rain is expected to be over Wales and southwest England. Accumulations of 20 to 30 mm are expected quite widely, especially over higher ground, with locally in excess of 50 mm over some hills and mountains. The heavy rain will also be accompanied by strong winds which could reach gale force around exposed coasts and over hills and moors.
This update removes the risk of significant impacts from Northern Ireland and southwest Scotland and expands the risk area to include more of Wales and southwest England.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Alert of Rain

Valid from 00:05 on Tue, 29th Jan 2013 until 23:55 on Tue, 29th Jan 2013

Another spell of heavy rain, accompanied by strong to gale force winds, will quickly spread northeastwards across the UK early on Tuesday. Given saturated ground, the public should be aware that further localised flooding and disruption to travel is likely.
